

Adam Durant, (University of Oslo) has broad experience in atmospheric science and volcanology. He has over 14 years experience working on volcanic ash clouds and was previously involved in airborne testing of ash detection technology for aviation applications. He now focuses on service-driven technologies used to manage a wide range of meteorological-related aviation hazards.